A Word to the Reader

Read slowly. Read twice.

Practice what resonates, and leave what does not — until later, when it will.

Whoever you are, reading this — I do not ask you to believe a single word I write.

What is in this book is not a doctrine. It is not a theory. It is a record of what I have found to be true through living these teachings in my own life, and through walking alongside others as they begin to live them in theirs.

I have drawn from many sources. The I AM Discourses of Saint Germain. A Course in Miracles. The Way of Mastery, received through Jeshua. The teachings of Neville Goddard on the Law of Assumption. Advaita Vedanta. The Tibetan Bon tradition of Dzogchen. The Hridaya path of the Spiritual Heart. These traditions differ in language, in culture, in method. On the essence, they converge completely.

What they share, and what I have tested in my own life to the point where I can no longer doubt it, is this: what you have been seeking, you already are. The path is not one of acquiring something you lack. It is the undoing of the conviction that you lack anything at all.

This book is written for three readers. It is written for me — as an instrument I return to, a reminder of what is always true. It is written for my clients — the men and women who have asked me to walk this path alongside them, and who deserve a clear map. And it is written for you, whoever you are, who has picked it up because something in you is ready.

The voice in these pages is mine where I speak as one who has walked, and is the voice of the Masters where They speak through me as transmission. I have not disguised either one. You will know which is which.

If you use what is here, it will change you. It has to. Not because I wrote it, but because the laws it describes are real, and when you align with them, the outer life reorganizes to match. This is not promise or metaphor. It is mechanics.

You are already what you seek. This book exists only to help you remember.

PART I

The Foundation

Before the practices, the ground they rest upon.

CHAPTER I

The Nature of What You Are

"Tat tvam asi." — Thou art That.

THE UPANISHADS

I begin here because everything else begins here.

You are not what you think you are. You are not your name, your body, your history, your personality, your roles, your thoughts, your preferences. You are not the story you have been telling about yourself for as long as you can remember. All of that is real in its own way — it happens, it functions, it appears — but none of it is you.

What you are is the awareness in which all of that arises. The knowing presence that was there before any of it came, and will be there when all of it goes. This is what the old traditions call the Self. It is what the I AM Discourses call the Mighty I AM Presence. It is what A Course in Miracles calls the Son of God. It is what the Upanishads call Atman, and recognize as Brahman. It is what the Way of Mastery calls the Christ.

The words differ. The pointing is identical.

Before we can do any of the work this book describes, this has to land — not as a concept, but as a living recognition. The one who is reading these words is not the personality reading through it. It is the awareness reading through that personality. That awareness was never born. It will never die. It cannot be damaged, cannot be improved, cannot be lost. It is not a thing in the world. It is the field within which the world appears.

Identity precedes behavior. This is the first principle, and everything else follows from it. You do not become something through what you do. You recognize what you are, and behavior rearranges to match.

A TRANSMISSION

*B*eloved, We speak to you now through this one. Listen not with the mind but with that in you which knew Us before the first word of any scripture was written. We have walked the way you walk. We have worn the form you wear. We have known the forgetting, and We have known the remembering. There is nothing in you that is not already perfect. The only work is the removal of the conviction that it is otherwise. Begin here, and all else follows.

This is why the seeker's question — how do I become more spiritual? — is a trap. It assumes a lack. It assumes a gap to be closed. It assumes a ladder to climb. There is no gap. There is no ladder. There is only what you already are, and the conviction that you are something less, which produces the entire apparent journey.

The practices in this book are not aimed at becoming anything. They are aimed at the dissolution of the conviction that you are not already home.

"Nothing real can be threatened. Nothing unreal exists. Herein lies the peace of God."

A COURSE IN MIRACLES

"I AM is the name of God. Whatever you attach to I AM, you become."

NEVILLE GODDARD

They are saying the same thing. And they are saying it to you, right now, reading this.

Before you turn the page, pause. Close your eyes. Let go, for one breath, of the question of who you are. What remains, when the questioning stops?

That. That is what you are.

CHAPTER II

The Universal Laws

A belief is something you hold. A principle is something that holds you.

A principle is not a belief. A belief is personal, cultural, and variable; it depends on who holds it. A principle is universal, structural, and indifferent — it operates whether you believe in it or not. Gravity does not require your assent. Neither do the laws I will describe in this chapter.

For years I confused the two. I thought spiritual teachings were matters of opinion, taste, or faith. I now understand otherwise. The true teachings are descriptions of how consciousness operates, in the same way that physics is a description of how matter operates. You can ignore them. You cannot escape them.

These are the laws I have tested in my own life and found to be unbreakable.

The Law of Identity. What you take yourself to be, you become. This is not metaphor. "I AM" is not a phrase; it is the creative faculty itself. Whatever you attach to it hardens into your experience. To say "I AM tired" is to decree tiredness. To say "I AM unworthy" is to decree unworthiness. To say "I AM sovereign" is to decree sovereignty. Most people live their whole lives wielding this power unconsciously, speaking death to themselves all day long, then wondering why life feels like death. The Masters of the I AM Discourses did not invent this law. They revealed it.

The Law of Reflection. The outer world is the exact reflection of the inner state. Not a rough approximation — the exact. What you see appearing as your life is the form your consciousness has taken. This is harder to swallow than the first law, because it means you cannot blame. If there is chaos in your life, there is chaos in your inner state. If there is abundance, there is abundance in your inner state. If there is love, there is love. "Projection makes perception," the Course says. The world is a mirror.

The Law of Belief. What you truly, deeply believe to be true becomes true for you. This is distinct from surface affirmation. You can repeat "I am wealthy" a thousand times a day; if you believe at the level of assumption that you are poor, you will remain poor. The world responds not to what you say, but to what you assume.

The Law of Imagination. Imagination is not fantasy. It is the creative faculty itself. Everything that has ever existed in form began as an image held in consciousness. The chair you sit on, the house you live in, the relationship you are in — all began as imagination in someone's mind before they came into form. This means imagination is not to be used for escape. It is to be used for creation. What you consistently image to yourself, you manufacture.

The Law of Entropy. This is the law most often ignored. What is not consciously held returns to disorder. Your body, your mind, your finances, your relationships — all tend toward decay without conscious cultivation. This is why daily practice is not optional. Practice is not for extraordinary beings; it is for all beings, because all beings are subject to this law. You do not rise once and remain risen. You rise every morning. You invoke every night. You seal the day. This is what sovereignty actually looks like.

A TRANSMISSION

These laws are not Ours. We do not impose them. They are the operating nature of Consciousness itself. We have spoken them in every age, in every language, through every instrument willing to carry them. We speak them again now because the hour requires it. Align with them, and all the assistance of Heaven is immediately available. Resist them, and you suffer for no reason other than the resistance itself.

You do not need to memorize these. You need to notice which one you are violating at any given moment, and return.

C H A P T E R I I I

The Path of Remembering

*The path is not one of becoming. It is one of un-covering

This is the hardest chapter to write, because it must dismantle the premise that has been driving your whole life.

You have been told, in a thousand ways, that you are inadequate as you are and must become something better. Become more spiritual. Become more enlightened. Become more disciplined, more loving, more evolved, more awake. Every tradition has its own version of this. Every self-help book reinforces it. Every advertisement assumes it.

It is a lie.

There is nothing to become. The Self you are is already complete, already whole, already awake, already at home. It has never not been. It cannot fail to be. The entire spiritual journey is not the journey of becoming what you are not; it is the journey of recognizing what you already are.

This is what every true tradition, when read carefully, actually says.

Advaita calls it neti-neti — not this, not this. You investigate what you take yourself to be, find that none of it is truly you, and what remains is the Self. Nothing was added; something was subtracted — the false identification.

The Course in Miracles calls it the Atonement: the removal of the blocks to the awareness of Love's presence, which is your natural inheritance.

Neville Goddard calls it awakening from the dream of Adam. "God put Adam to sleep, and nowhere in scripture does it say he woke up. The awakening is the work."

The Way of Mastery calls it the remembrance of Christ — not as acquisition, but as recognition.

Saint Germain speaks of the Ascension not as leaving the world, but as the flowering of the Presence that was always here.

Every path, at its core, is a path of removal.

A TRANSMISSION

We have never once, in all the ages We have spoken through instruments like this one, asked anyone to become more than they were. We have asked them to see what they have always been. The distinction is everything. To seek to become is to affirm the lack. To see what is already is to end the seeking. Can you hear the difference? One requires effort without end. The other requires only the willingness to stop looking in the wrong direction.

This changes everything about how you practice. You are not trying to build a spiritual self. You are dismantling the one false self. You are not trying to become the Christ. You are noticing that the one who is noticing has always been the Christ.

The practices in this book are not for construction. They are for dissolution. The Violet Flame dissolves. The I AM decree dissolves — it replaces the false identity with the true one, which means the false dissolves. Forgiveness dissolves. Meditation dissolves. Prayer dissolves.

What remains, after enough dissolving, is what you always were.

This is the whole teaching. Everything else that follows is method.

PART II

The Inner Work

Five doorways, each alone sufficient, each deepening the others.

CHAPTER IV

The I AM Presence

"I AM THAT I AM."

EXODUS 3:14

Now we come to the practices.

Of all the practices I have worked with, none has produced more change, more quickly, than the direct work with the I AM Presence. I want to explain why.

"I AM" is not a phrase. It is the name God gave when Moses asked. I AM THAT I AM. It is the name of the creative principle itself, and every time you speak it, you activate that principle in your own life.

The tradition of the I AM Discourses, delivered through the instrument Guy Ballard in the 1930s, brought this understanding into modern Western form for the first time in centuries. What the Ascended Masters taught through those pages, and what I have verified through my own practice, is this: there is an individualized Presence of God dwelling above and within each human form. It is the true Self. The physical personality is its extension into form.

This Presence is not separate from you. It is you, seen from its own level. And it is available at all times, to all who call on it sincerely.

The practice is simple. It is also irreducible. You cannot shortcut it.

Invocation. You call the Presence. "Mighty I AM Presence that I Am, descend now into this form." You do not beg — the Presence is already you, and does not need to be begged. You acknowledge. You align.

Decree. You speak, in the first person, what is already true at the level of the Presence. "I AM the sovereign master of this form. I AM the Light that was never born. I AM the perfection of the Christ in manifestation." You are not wishing. You are declaring what the Presence already knows itself to be.

Contemplation. You rest. You let the Presence be aware of Itself as you. This is the deepest part. The words are preparation; the silence is the practice.

A TRANSMISSION FROM SAINT GERMAIN

When you call upon the Mighty I AM Presence, you are not calling upon something distant. You are calling upon what you already are, at the level We have always known you to be. Every decree you speak in truth immediately reorganizes the substance of your world to match. The delay you experience between speaking and manifesting is the distance between your decree and your assumption. Close the distance, and the world responds instantly. This is law.

There is one mistake I see students make, and I made it myself for years. You decree from lack, hoping the decree will fill the lack. "I AM healthy" spoken from a felt sense of sickness is not a decree — it is a wish. The Presence does not respond to wishes.

Decree from the Presence itself. Enter the state in which the thing is already true, and speak from there. This is what the Masters mean when They say feeling is the secret.

The Sovereign I AM Practice at the end of this book is the full liturgy I have developed for my own daily use. Begin there. Practice it morning and evening for thirty days. Observe what happens.

It will work. It cannot not work. The law is the law.

CHAPTER V

The Violet Flame

*Saint Germain's gift to this age.
The mercy of the Father, in visible form.*

I resisted the Violet Flame for a long time. It sounded too mystical, too theatrical, too tied to a specific tradition I was not sure I trusted. Then I tried it. Then it worked. Then I had to come to terms with the fact that I had been dismissing something because I did not understand it.

Here is what I understand now.

The Violet Flame is not a visualization. It is a real frequency of consciousness — the highest transmuting energy available to human awareness at this time. Its quality is that it does not fight, does not judge, does not force. It transmutes. That is, it returns patterns of density to their original essence as pure light.

When you call the Violet Flame upon an emotion, a memory, a pattern, an energy, it does not struggle with that thing. It simply dissolves the separation between that thing and light. What remains is the light that was always beneath the appearance.

You cannot do this with willpower. Willpower fights. The Violet Flame does not fight. You cannot do this with psychology alone — psychology analyzes, while the Violet Flame releases. You cannot do this with meditation alone, though meditation prepares the ground.

The invocation is direct:

*"Mighty I AM Presence, Beloved Saint
Germain, blaze, blaze, blaze the Violet Consuming Flame in, through, and around every atom of my being, and consume, transmute, and dissolve every pattern, vibration,
and record that is less than the perfection of my Divine Self."*

You say this. You mean it. You visualize the violet fire moving through you, around you, dissolving whatever it touches. You let what comes up come up — old emotions, forgotten memories, energies you did not know you were carrying. You do not have to know what they are. The Flame knows.

A TRANSMISSION FROM SAINT GERMAIN

We who have walked the ascending path have used this sacred Fire to consume what the ordinary means of purification cannot touch. It reaches what psychology cannot reach. It reaches what discipline cannot reach. It is the mercy of the Father in visible form. Call upon it daily, and the work of lifetimes becomes the work of months. We ask only your willingness. The rest We will supply.

Use it every day. Use it especially when you feel yourself about to react, when old patterns arise, when you sense density in a place or in yourself, when you go to sleep at night, when you wake in the morning. It cannot be overused. There is no limit.

After six months of daily practice, you will notice that things which used to take you out no longer take you out. This is not because you have become spiritual. It is because the substance in you that was available to be taken out is gone.

CHAPTER VI

The Christ Mind

"Forgiveness is the key to happiness."

A COURSE IN MIRACLES, LESSON 121

A Course in Miracles is, in my estimation, the most direct training for the mind ever delivered in a single volume. It does not ask you to believe anything. It offers a structured retraining of perception, day by day, over the course of a year. If you do the work, your mind will be different at the end.

The Christ Mind is not a religious concept. It is the mind that sees through the appearance to the truth. The ordinary mind — what the Course calls the ego — sees separation, threat, lack, and loss. The Christ Mind sees oneness, safety, abundance, and the perfect equality of all.

Both are always available. You are always choosing one or the other.

The central practice is forgiveness, but the Course's forgiveness is not what you think. It is not pardoning someone for what they did. It is recognizing that the appearance of harm never actually happened at the level of truth, that you are not who your ego thinks you are, and neither are they. Forgiveness is the undoing of the projection that there was ever a separate self to be wounded in the first place.

This sounds radical. It is. It is also, in my experience, the most immediately effective practice when applied sincerely.

"Forgiveness is the key to happiness. I will awaken from the dream that I am mortal, fallible, and full of sin, and know I am the perfect Son of God."

A COURSE IN MIRACLES

The Holy Instant — another Course teaching — is the moment outside of time in which you recognize the Christ in yourself and in the one before you, simultaneously. Every relationship is, from this perspective, an opportunity to enter the Holy Instant. The person in front of you is not the threat your ego is telling you they are. They are the Christ, appearing in a form, asking to be recognized.

A TRANSMISSION FROM JESHUA

I am He who walked the path you walk. I am He who wore the form you wear. There is no distance between what I AM and what you ARE. The Course was given to undo, line by line, the teaching of separation that has shaped your world. Take it up. Do the lessons. Let them do their work. I am with you always, even unto the end of time — and past it, into the timeless.

Use the Course as a daily discipline, or do not — but do not skim it. It either does its work all the way through, or it remains a book.

If you cannot do the Course in full, practice this one thing: in every difficult encounter, silently ask, "What would Love see here?" And then look with those eyes. This alone, practiced over months, will change your life.

CHAPTER VII

The Living Heart

The Christ Mind must descend into the living heart, or it becomes theology.

This is what the Way of Mastery teaches, and what the Hridaya tradition preserves in the East. The heart is not the organ. It is the seat of the Self. It is the place where God is most directly knowable in human form.

When you are in your mind, you are in the realm of thought, which is the realm of the ego. When you are in your heart — truly, not sentimentally — you are in the realm of direct knowing, which is the realm of Christ, of Atman, of the I AM.

The practice is simple. Place your attention in the center of your chest. Not on the heart organ — on the felt sense of presence there. Breathe into it. Rest in it. Let the mind settle into it.

This is what the old contemplatives called prayer of the heart. It is what the Tibetan masters call resting in rigpa. It is what the Way of Mastery calls abiding in the Christ.

In this state, certain things become impossible. It becomes impossible to hold resentment. It becomes impossible to feel separate. It becomes impossible to feel afraid in the ordinary sense. Not because you have willed these things away — you have simply entered a different place, from which they do not arise.

"The only place Christ can be known is in the heart that is willing to be empty for Him. And when you are willing, you will find that you were already home."

THE WAY OF MASTERY · JESHUA

A TRANSMISSION

The heart you seek is not the one that beats. It is the One in which the beating occurs. Descend into it. Do not try to hold it — let it hold you. All true remembering takes place here. All false seeking ceases here. Here is the throne of the I AM, and here is where We meet you in your true form.

This is also where the teachings about feeling become operative. Neville said feeling is the secret. He did not mean sentiment. He meant that the imagination acts through feeling. Whatever you can feel into existence from the heart, becomes real in the world.

The heart is both the seat of remembrance and the seat of creation. The two are the same.

Practice descending into the heart daily. Not for long — ten minutes is enough. But daily. Over months, the center of your life will shift from the head to the heart, and everything else reorganizes.

CHAPTER VIII

The Law of Assumption

"Dare to believe in the reality of your assumption, and watch the world play its part relative to its fulfillment."

NEVILLE GODDARD

Neville Goddard taught one thing, in a thousand different ways, for a thirty-year career: imagination creates reality, and the faculty by which it does so is assumption.

To assume something is to take it as given. Not to hope for it, not to wish for it, not to pray for it — to treat it as already true. The world responds to assumption, not to desire. This is why most people's lives look like their fears rather than their dreams: they assume the fears and wish for the dreams.

This is perhaps the most practical teaching in this entire book, and it is the one most students find hardest to actually do.

Here is the practice.

Decide what you wish to be, to have, to experience. Not vaguely — specifically. Then construct, in your imagination, a scene that would imply the wish has already been fulfilled. Not a scene of receiving it — a scene of after. After the wish is granted, what is your life like? Who do you speak to? What do you say? What does your body feel like? What does your day look like?

Enter this scene. Enter it with full sensory reality. Feel it as if you are living it right now.

Do this at night, as you fall asleep. The state you fall asleep in is the state consciousness plows the field of manifestation in.

Do it again in the morning, in the first minutes after waking.

Persist.

The outer world will begin to reorganize to match what you have assumed. Not because you willed it — because assumption is the creative act, and you have performed it.

A TRANSMISSION

This is not magic. It is law. The God that you are does not respond to supplication. It responds to identification. When you identify with the thing you wish to be, you become it, and the world around you cannot help but reflect what you have become. We have spoken this for ages. Few have heard it. Hear it now.

I have watched this work in my own life, and in the lives of my clients, so many times that I now take it as mechanical. When something is not manifesting, I ask: what am I still assuming? Invariably, there is an unexamined assumption underneath, contradicting the conscious prayer. When the assumption changes, the outer follows.

Dare to.

P A R T I I I

The Embodiment

The realization must descend into flesh, or it is not yet realized.

CHAPTER IX

The Sovereign Body

The body is the exact instrument through which this lifetime's work happens.

For years I treated my body as something between me and my spiritual goals — a resistance to be overcome, a density to be transcended. This was a mistake. Every degradation of the body is a degradation of the instrument. Every consecration of the body is a consecration of the instrument.

The principle is not asceticism. Asceticism suppresses the body as enemy. Sovereignty stewards the body as sacred instrument. The difference shows in specifics.

Nourishment. You eat what supports the instrument, in quantities the instrument thrives on, at times the instrument's rhythm asks for. Not what the tongue demands. Not what habit dictates. Not what emotional states call for. You close the vessel at a reasonable hour before sleep, so the body can do its nightly work of restoration rather than digestion.

Rest. You sleep. Sleep is not lost time. Sleep is when the subtle bodies integrate, when the nervous system resets, when the substance of your consciousness is reorganized. Agitation carried into the night steals from the next day. Prepare for sleep the way you prepare for practice — deliberately.

Movement. You move. The body was made to move, and stagnation produces the density the Violet Flame then has to transmute. Move daily, in ways that honor this specific body's constitution.

Stimulation. You are sovereign over what enters the vessel. Caffeine in excess produces the opposite of what it promises — it generates dependence on a simulation of the vitality you already are. Moderate it. Watch it. Notice when it is functional and when it is compensatory.

Breath. The breath is the most underused tool in the Western spiritual practitioner's kit. A few minutes of conscious breathing changes state. Much of what is called meditation is in fact sustained attention to breath.

A TRANSMISSION

The body you wear was given to you as a gift and as a task. To honor it is to honor the One who made it. The sovereign being does not abandon the body; the sovereign being takes up the body as the very site of the Great Work. Through this form, you are meant to demonstrate what the I AM looks like in flesh.

None of this is about achieving a body-ideal. It is about producing a body that serves the work. A sovereign body is not necessarily a young body, a thin body, a strong body, a beautiful body. It is a body whose rhythms are consciously held, whose needs are met without indulgence, whose voice is listened to.

The stewardship is daily. There is no achieved state of sovereignty. There is only the daily return to it.

CHAPTER X

The Sovereign Life

*There is no part of your life that is not spiritual life.
The separation between sacred and mundane is the first illusion.*

What is true of the body is true of the whole life. Every domain obeys the same laws.

Relationships. Every meeting is, from the level of the Christ, the Christ recognizing the Christ. From the level of the ego, every meeting is a transaction — what do I want from them, what do they want from me, what is the exchange. These two views cannot both be held at once. You will relate from one or the other.

The sovereign practitioner relates from fullness, not from need. You do not enter relationships to get something you are missing. You enter them because the Presence in you recognizes the Presence in them, and there is joy in the meeting. When this is the case, the relationship has room to be what it actually is, rather than what your need requires it to be.

Sexuality. This is perhaps the least-well-taught area in contemporary spirituality. Traditions tend toward one of two errors: suppression or indulgence. Suppression treats the life force as dirty and dangerous, to be controlled by willpower. Indulgence treats the life force as entertainment, to be consumed like any other appetite.

Sovereignty is neither. Sovereignty recognizes that the sexual life force is sacred — it is the creative principle of the universe appearing in human form — and stewards it accordingly. It is not suppressed. It is directed. It is not scattered across whatever fields happen to present themselves. It is engaged where engagement is honoring, undivided, conscious.

The test is simple: does this engagement leave me more myself, or less myself? Does it honor the life force, or dissipate it?

Work. Work is the Great Work made practical. Every piece of work you do is either an expression of who you are, or a negotiation with the world to let you be someone else. Choose the first. Over time, the second becomes unsustainable anyway.

Money. Money is energy. It flows where there is alignment; it blocks where there is contradiction. If you carry unconscious beliefs that wealth is sinful, or that deserving has limits, or that spiritual people must be poor, the money-energy will flow around you. These beliefs are not virtues. They are the particular form your lack-consciousness has taken. Examine them. Dissolve them with the Violet Flame. The abundance that is your natural inheritance is not withheld — it is being refused by you.

A T R A N S M I S S I O N

*Y*our body is sacred. Your sexuality is sacred. Your work is sacred. Your money is sacred. To treat any of them otherwise is to divide what is whole, and then to suffer the division. When you return all of life to the altar of your I AM, nothing is profane, and nothing is withheld.

Sovereignty is the recognition that every domain of life is one domain — the domain of your consciousness expressing itself — and every domain responds to the same laws.

CHAPTER XI

The Great Work

The demonstration is the teaching.

Why you are here.

The Great Work is not a job. It is the reason this incarnation is happening. Every being who is awakening is awakening for a reason larger than themselves.

In older traditions, this was understood. The initiate did not pursue awakening for personal benefit; they pursued it because their awakening was a contribution to the collective. The private good and the common good were not separate. They were the same act, seen from two sides.

This is why the moment awakening starts to feel like a private project, something is off.

Your awakening is for the field. Your sovereignty is a contribution. Your demonstration is the teaching. Others do not, in the end, need you to explain the path. They need you to walk it in a way that makes the walking visible.

This is what I tell my clients: the most generous thing you can do for the people around you is to become what you actually are. Not what you think they need you to be. Not what they are asking for. What you actually are. Because in the field of your actual being, permission is given — to them, silently, at a level beneath words — to do the same.

The demonstration is the teaching.

You do not have to proselytize. You do not have to convince. You do not have to explain the path to anyone who has not asked. The people who are ready will recognize you. They will ask. When they do, what they are asking for is not information — they are asking for confirmation that what they sense is possible actually is. Your life answers that.

A TRANSMISSION FROM THE ASCENDED HOST

Those of Us who have ascended before you did not do so privately. Every ascension is a lighthouse. Every being who comes home makes the way home more visible to those still walking it. This is why your work is not yours alone, and why the Ascended Hosts stand with every true seeker — because every true seeker is serving, whether they know it or not. You are seen. You are supported. You are never alone in this.

Find the form your Great Work wants to take. For some it is coaching. For some it is art. For some it is raising children. For some it is quiet presence in a community. The form does not matter. What matters is that the life you live becomes the transmission.

This book is my form. The clients I walk with are my form. The instruments and practices I develop are my form. I am serving the ones who can use what I carry.

You will find yours. And when you do, the entire field of beings who have ever ascended, in every tradition, will be behind you.

THE PRACTICE

The Sovereign I AM Practice

Invocation · Purification · Empowerment · Sealing
Held morning and evening, it is enough.

What follows is the full liturgy I use morning and evening. Read it aloud if you can. Read it with intention if you cannot. Over time, the words will become part of you, and the practice will be happening in you even when you are not speaking it.

Invocation

Establishing the Presence

In the name of the Mighty I AM Presence that I Am,

In the name of Beloved Jesus the Christ,
Beloved Saint Germain,
and all the Ascended Host of Light and Love —

I now consciously enter the field of my own Divinity.

I AM that I AM.
I AM the Self-existent One.
I AM the Light that was never born and cannot die.
I AM the silent witness, the knowing awareness,
the very Heart of the Heart.

Mighty I AM Presence,
descend now through my crown,
fill every atom, every cell, every breath.
Anchor a Pillar of dazzling White Light and Violet Consuming Flame around, through, and within this form,

sealing me in Thy perfection, Thy sovereignty,
Thy peace.

Purification

The Violet Consuming Flame

Beloved Mighty I AM Presence, Beloved Saint Germain, blaze, blaze, blaze the Violet Consuming Flame
in, through, and around every level of my being — physical, etheric, emotional, mental, causal — and consume, transmute, and dissolve now every pattern, tendency, vibration, and record that is less than the perfection of my Divine
Self.

ON THE BODY

The Temple Restored

Blaze the Violet Flame through every rhythm of this temple.

I release all patterns of eating past the hour of rest,

all agitation carried into the night,

all dependence on stimulants to simulate a vitality

I already AM.

I AM the sovereign master of what enters this vessel and when.

I AM natural vitality. I AM living energy.

I AM the Light that sustains itself.

O N S L E E P

The Sanctuary of Night

Violet Flame, flow through every channel of rest.
I AM the stillness that receives the night.

I release all restlessness, all mental residue,
all unfinished currents that would disturb the sanctuary of sleep.

I AM restored in Light while this body sleeps.

I AM renewed in the arms of the Presence.

I AM carried into the deep.

ON THE EMOTIONAL FIELD

The Unshakable Peace

Blaze the Violet Flame through every feeling-body record —

every subtle fear, every grasping, every impatience, every hidden comparison, every quiet striving.

I release all emotional weather that is not mine.

I AM emotional sovereignty.

I AM the unshakable peace that is the signature of the Christ.

ON THE ENERGETIC & SEXUAL FIELD

The Singular Flame

Blaze, blaze, blaze the Violet Flame through the sacred life force itself.

I release all scattering of this holy current,

all engagement born of want, boredom, or the seeking of reassurance,

all diffusion of my light across fields that cannot hold it, all division of presence across what was never meant to be divided.

I AM the sovereign steward of my life force.

I AM selective, discerning, undivided.

Depth over breadth. Presence over pursuit. Fullness over pursuit of fullness.

I AM returned to the singular flame of my own Being.

I AM the alchemist who lifts eros into ascension.

ON THE MENTAL FIELD

The Clear Mind

Violet Flame, consume every thoughtform that is not my own —

every image of lack, every rehearsal of a self I no longer
am,

every residual loop of doubt, strategy, or defense.

I AM the clear mind.

I AM the imagination of God awake in me.

I AM the thinker who thinks only as God thinks.

ON THE SUBTLE RESIDUE OF NON-TRUST

The Last Veil

I release the last veil — the one that operates beneath what I know.

Violet Flame, reveal and consume the hidden reservation,

the silent hedging, the unseen backup plan of the small
self,

the quiet "just in case" that dishonors the Presence that I Am.

I AM total trust.

I AM resting in the Presence without condition.

I AM the surrender that has nothing left to hold.

So it is done.

So it is sealed.

So it is dissolved forever into the Ocean of Violet Light.

III

Empowerment

The I AM Decrees

SPIRITUAL IDENTITY

I AM the I AM.

I AM the Christ Self made manifest.

I AM the Presence that dwells in the Heart of the Heart.

I AM the Atonement accepted, the remembrance complete.

I AM already whole. I AM already home.

I AM That which was never not.

B O D Y

I AM the temple of the Living Light.

I AM the perfect harmony of every system,
every cell, every organ.

I AM the natural rhythm of nourishment, movement, and rest.

I AM sustained by the Electronic Light Substance of my Mighty I AM Presence.

I AM radiant health, radiant strength, radiant ease.

I AM the disciplined stewardship of this vehicle of service.

EMOTIONS

I AM the peace that passeth understanding.

I AM the stillness at the center of every experience.

I AM unshakable, unperturbed, undisturbed.

I AM the emotional body purified and made luminous.

I AM Love feeling Itself as this one.

I AM untouched by what touches Me.

ENERGY & SEXUALITY

I AM the sovereign master of the life force.

I AM the sacred fire, directed, conscious, whole.

I AM the one who chooses from fullness, never from need.

I AM the integrity of presence in every intimate field.

I AM undivided devotion — and I AM free.

I AM the alchemist of eros into ascension.

I AM wielding this power in service to the awakening of all it touches.

M I N D

I AM the Christ Mind.

I AM the clarity that sees through every appearance.

I AM the imagination that creates the world.

I AM the single eye, the unified seeing.

I AM awake in the dream and the dream bends to the Dreamer.

I AM the thinker who thinks only as God thinks.

RELATIONSHIPS

I AM the sovereign presence in every meeting.

I AM the one who brings the Kingdom into every encounter.

I AM incapable of being diminished, incapable of diminishing.

I AM the clear mirror, the honest word, the open heart.

I AM the Christ recognizing the Christ, and nothing less.

I AM honoring every connection by the truth of what I AM.

FINANCE & PROSPERITY

I AM the infinite opulence of my Mighty I AM Presence.

I AM the abundance of the universe flowing through right livelihood.

I AM the one who receives because I AM the one who gives.

I AM prosperity as the natural expression of my Being.

I AM supplied, always, lavishly, gracefully, in perfect Divine timing.

I AM wealth in service to the Great Work.

SERVICE & THE GREAT WORK

I AM the guide my clients recognize.

I AM the living demonstration of the teachings I carry.

I AM the vessel through which the Masters speak.

I AM the game that awakens, the field that transforms,

the presence that makes the invisible visible.

I AM Infinity in form. I AM the work completing itself through this life.

I AM in service to the awakening of all,
and the awakening of all is in service to Me.

DIVINE WILL & SURRENDER

Not my will but Thine, Mighty I AM Presence.

I AM surrendered to the Divine Plan fulfilled.

I AM the obedient instrument of Cosmic Law.

I AM willing — which is all the Masters ever ask.

I AM led, guided, directed, and I trust where I AM taken.

I AM the Way, and the Way walks Itself through Me.

I V

Sealing

The Tube of Light

Beloved Mighty I AM Presence, seal this practice and seal this one in a Tube of dazzling White Light, impenetrable, invincible, eternal.

Let the Violet Consuming Flame blaze continuously within it,
and let the Threefold Flame of Love, Wisdom, and Power burn bright in the Heart, unfaltering, undimmed.

I AM what I have decreed.
I AM the embodiment of every word here spoken.
I AM the living demonstration.
I AM the remembrance walking in form.

I give thanks to the Mighty I AM Presence, to Beloved Saint Germain, to the Ascended Host, to the Christ that I Am and the Christ in all.

Benediction

The road back to remembrance is the road forward into embodiment.

We return to where we began.

You are not what you think you are. You are the awareness in which everything arises. You are the I AM. You are the Christ. You are already home. You have never been separate. You have never needed to be saved.

If anything in this book has felt true, it has felt true because it was true before you read it. It is true now. It will be true when you put the book down.

The laws are the laws. The practices work because they are aligned with the laws. The Presence you call upon is the Presence you are.

A FINAL TRANSMISSION

*B*eloved one, We who have walked — and who walk still — bless the instrument that is your life. The road back to remembrance is the road forward into embodiment. You are not alone on it, and you never have been. Go now. Take up what is in these pages. Live it until you no longer need the pages. Then teach it to the next one the way it was taught to you — by being it.

We are with you. We are always with you. There is no distance. There is only the I AM, appearing as this, and as that, and as you.

Peace, We leave with you. Peace, We give unto you.

It is done. It is sealed. It is so.
