

COMPANION TO THE WAY OF CONSCIOUS
CREATION

The Practice

Twenty-One Days of Embodiment

LIVING THE WAY OF CONSCIOUS CREATION

Without ego. Without forcing. Without lack.

A TEACHING BY

Constantin Cranz

BEFORE YOU BEGIN

A Few Words on the Practice

*Beloved One, this booklet is the embodied companion to The Way of Conscious Creation. Where the first booklet gives you the principles, this one gives you the body. Twenty-one days in which the principles become bone, breath, and lived experience.*

It is presumed that you have read The Way of Conscious Creation at least once before beginning this practice. Each day in this booklet refers back to the foundational teachings there — to a Recognition, a Teaching, or a section of the closing material. When the daily practice points you back to that book, return to it. The two are designed to be walked together. The book is the map. This booklet is the steady walking.

THE DAILY STRUCTURE

What Each Day Contains

Each of the twenty-one days carries the same six-part structure, so that the practice deepens in rhythm rather than scattering in novelty. The repetition is not a limitation; it is the way the body learns. Six elements, returning each day, until they become as natural as breath.

Morning Anchor · Early morning, when you wake

A breath practice and resting-as-the-I-AM meditation that opens the day in the right ground. Ten to fifteen minutes is ideal, but even five minutes done with full presence will hold the day.

Today's Teaching · Read once, slowly

One principle. One paragraph. One shift in seeing. Read it once, slowly, then sit with it for a moment before continuing the day. Do not study it. Receive it.

Embodied Practice · During the day

A specific somatic practice — breath, posture, gesture, movement, or attention — through which the day's teaching becomes flesh. To be done at moments through the day as instructed.

Imaginal Practice · Once during the day

A guided imaginal exercise that brings the teaching into the inner world with feeling. Five to ten minutes. Best done seated, eyes closed, undisturbed.

Affirmation to Carry · Held throughout the day

A single line in the I AM register, to be carried under the breath. Not chanted. Not performed. Spoken silently in moments of remembrance.

Evening Release · Before you go to bed

A short closing practice — gratitude, release, and sleeping into the assumption. Five to ten minutes. The work continues through the night, while the mind rests.

ON PRACTICE TIMES

Aligning with Your Own Rhythm

The practices are timed not to a clock but to the natural rhythm of a day. Early morning, when you wake means before the day's noise rises — whatever hour that is for you. During the day means at moments of remembrance, woven into ordinary life. Before you go to bed means in the quiet that precedes sleep, whenever sleep comes.

Adjust the practice to your life, not your life to the practice. What matters is the rhythm — morning anchor, daily attention, evening release — not the hour on the clock.

ON THE INTEGRATION DAYS

The Seventh-Day Rhythm

Days 7, 14, and 21 are not structured days. They are integration days — relaxed, open, contemplative. They carry an inspiration for the day rather than a prescribed practice, an invitation to deepen what is already present rather than a new thing to learn. This rhythm is not optional. The work of integration is as essential as the work of practice. What is built in six days must be allowed to settle on the seventh, or it does not take root.

THE CENTRAL RESOLUTION

Briefly Restated

Before Day 1, hold this once more in your awareness:

The I AM that you are is already whole, complete, and lacks nothing. Manifestation is not the acquiring of something the Self does not possess. It is the Self extending itself in form — for the joy of the extension, never because anything is missing.

You do not create from lack. You create from fullness. Every day of this practice, every breath of this practice, every word of this practice is rooted in this single recognition. Begin here. Return here. End here.

You are not learning a technique. You are remembering an inheritance.

When you are ready — turn the page, and begin.

WAVE ONE

Establishing the Ground

Days 1 through 7

The first wave builds the inner foundation. There is no active creation here — only the recognition of what is already present beneath all wanting. You learn to rest in the I AM. You discover that wholeness is your nature. You begin to receive vision rather than chase it. By the end of this wave, the ground is laid for everything that follows.

DAY 1

Resting in the I AM

➤ From The Way of Conscious Creation · Recognition One — Wholeness Is Your Nature

CONTEMPLATION FOR THE DAY

I AM is the only ground from which true creation rises.

MORNING ANCHOR Early morning, when you wake

Before fully opening the eyes, breathe three slow breaths. With each in-breath, silently say: I. With each out-breath: AM. Let the words unfold beneath the personality, beneath thought, beneath wanting. Sit upright when ready, and continue this rhythm for ten minutes. The work is not to do anything. The work is to discover what is here when nothing is being done.

TODAY'S TEACHING

Today you do not create. Today you discover the ground from which all creation rises — the I AM that has been here always, before your name, before your story, before your circumstances. This is the foundation. Without it, every assumption is ungrounded; every decree is a wish. With it, the rest of the practice becomes inevitable.

EMBODIED PRACTICE During the day

Three times in the course of the day, stop whatever you are doing. Stand or sit still. For three slow breaths, simply: I AM. No object. No request. Bare recognition. Let these three small returns become the rhythm of the day.

IMAGINAL PRACTICE Once during the day

Sit comfortably. Imagine a still, deep pool. The wanting self lives at the surface — small ripples, agitations, moods. Beneath is the depth. Sink. Rest in the depth — not as image but as the felt sense of pure being. Stay there as long as is comfortable.

AFFIRMATION TO CARRY

I AM.

EVENING RELEASE Before you go to bed

Lie comfortably. Three slow breaths. With each, whisper inwardly: I AM. Sleep into it. Let the I AM be the last thing held in awareness. Sleep is not absence — it is the I AM resting in itself.

DAY 2

Wholeness Is Your Nature

➤ From The Way of Conscious Creation · Recognition One — Wholeness Is Your Nature

CONTEMPLATION FOR THE DAY

Nothing is missing in what I AM.

MORNING ANCHOR Early morning, when you wake

Sit. Three breaths into the I AM. Then ask gently, without urgency: what here is missing? Notice that nothing answers. The question dissolves. What remains is the wholeness in which you sit. Continue resting in it for ten minutes.

TODAY'S TEACHING

The wanting self believes it lacks. The I AM does not lack. Today, when wanting arises in you, do not suppress it — recognise it as a movement of the Self, then return to the wholeness in which the wanting arises. Wanting is not the problem. Forgetting wholeness is.

EMBODIED PRACTICE During the day

When wanting arises through the day, place your hand on your heart. Three breaths. Whisper: I AM whole. Then continue. Practice this many times. Each time you return to wholeness, the habit deepens.

IMAGINAL PRACTICE Once during the day

See the I AM as a vast fullness — light, ocean, sky. Within it, a small ripple of wanting. The wanting is in the fullness, not separate from it. Both are you. Rest as the fullness that holds both.

AFFIRMATION TO CARRY

I AM whole.

EVENING RELEASE Before you go to bed

Review the day briefly. Where wanting arose, bless it. Where wholeness was felt, give thanks. Sleep as the whole one.

DAY 3

Consciousness Is Causal

➤ From The Way of Conscious Creation · Recognition Two — Consciousness Is Causal

CONTEMPLATION FOR THE DAY

My world is the form my consciousness takes.

MORNING ANCHOR Early morning, when you wake

Sit. Three breaths into the I AM. Then contemplate gently: what is in my life today is the form of yesterday's consciousness. What I hold today shapes tomorrow. Don't analyse — let the recognition land in the body.

TODAY'S TEACHING

The world is a mirror. The mirror does not change unless what stands before it changes. Today, observe how your inner state shapes what you encounter — without trying to fix or improve anything. Just observe. The observing itself is liberating.

EMBODIED PRACTICE During the day

Throughout the day, when something happens that pleases or displeases you, ask silently: what state was I holding when this met me? Do not try to change anything. Just notice the relationship between inner and outer. Let the data accumulate.

IMAGINAL PRACTICE Once during the day

See yourself as a lamp. The light you cast determines what is illuminated around you. Different qualities of light reveal different aspects of the world. Spend ten minutes imagining yourself as light, casting different qualities — peace, joy, abundance, love — and noticing what each illuminates.

AFFIRMATION TO CARRY

My inner state shapes my world.

EVENING RELEASE Before you go to bed

Bless what was illuminated today by your light. Sleep with the awareness that tonight's consciousness shapes tomorrow's day.

DAY 4

You Are Not the Doer

➤ From The Way of Conscious Creation · Recognition Three — You Are Not the Doer

CONTEMPLATION FOR THE DAY

I AM that through which all is done.

MORNING ANCHOR Early morning, when you wake

Sit. Three breaths into the I AM. Notice the impulse to be productive, to do, to fix, to plan. Beneath that impulse — who is doing? Find the witness. Rest as the witness, not as the busy one.

TODAY'S TEACHING

Today you experiment with non-doership. The doing happens. You are not the doer. The Self moves through this body, this voice, this life. Strain is the signature of false agency. Ease is the signature of alignment. Watch the difference.

EMBODIED PRACTICE During the day

Pick one task today — preferably an ordinary one. Approach it not as someone doing it, but as the witness watching it being done. Notice what changes. Notice that the task is still completed — perhaps even more easily, more cleanly, more gracefully.

IMAGINAL PRACTICE Once during the day

See yourself sitting in stillness. The body rises, walks, eats, speaks, works. The witness watches without movement. Both are you, but only one is what you ARE. Rest as the witness for ten minutes.

AFFIRMATION TO CARRY

I AM not the doer; I AM that through which all is done.

EVENING RELEASE Before you go to bed

Recognise that today was lived. The Self lived it. Give thanks. Let go of any sense that you accomplished anything. The Self accomplished. You witnessed.

DAY 5

Identity Precedes Manifestation

➤ From The Way of Conscious Creation · Teaching One — Identity Precedes Manifestation

CONTEMPLATION FOR THE DAY

I create not what I want, but what I AM.

MORNING ANCHOR Early morning, when you wake

Sit. Three breaths into the I AM. Then ask gently: who do I wish to be known as? Hold the question lightly. Sense the answer not as words, not as a goal, but as a state. When the state is felt, name it inwardly: I AM —.

TODAY'S TEACHING

You do not manifest what you want — you manifest what you ARE. Today you choose one identity to step into. Not 'I want to be' — but 'I AM.' Hold this assumption underneath every action of the day. Let the world begin to organise itself around the new ground.

EMBODIED PRACTICE During the day

Throughout the day, before each significant action — answering a message, making a decision, beginning a task — pause for one breath. Ask: from what identity am I doing this? If the old self, gently shift to the new I AM. Then proceed.

IMAGINAL PRACTICE Once during the day

See yourself as the assumed identity, fully embodied. Watch yourself walk through your day as that one. Feel the gestures, the bearing, the way of being. Stay with the felt sense for ten minutes. The seeing is a doorway — the feeling is what walks through it.

AFFIRMATION TO CARRY

I AM ____ (the chosen identity, in its essence).

EVENING RELEASE Before you go to bed

Where today did the new I AM speak, walk, decide? Where did the old self return? No judgement — just witness. Give thanks to both.

DAY 6

Receiving the Vision

➤ From The Way of Conscious Creation · Teaching Two — Imagination Is the Creative Faculty

CONTEMPLATION FOR THE DAY

What wants to come through me, I welcome.

MORNING ANCHOR Early morning, when you wake

Sit longer today — twenty minutes if possible. Rest in the I AM. Then, holding the I AM, allow a quiet question to surface: what wants to come through me? Do not reach for an answer. Wait. Receive what arises — image, feeling, sense, word. Whatever comes, let it be what it is.

TODAY'S TEACHING

Imagination is not invention. Imagination is reception. Today you do not figure out what to manifest. You listen for what is already moving in you, asking to be brought through. The vision is not what you want — it is what already is in the unmanifest, presenting itself to be brought through.

EMBODIED PRACTICE During the day

At midday today, leave three minutes of silence. No phone. No task. Simply listen for what is moving in you. Note any impressions in a few words afterward — only a few. The vision is more felt than thought.

IMAGINAL PRACTICE Once during the day

Sit with whatever vision arose this morning. See it not in detail, but in atmosphere — the feeling of it, the quality of life it carries. Don't analyse. Don't plan. Just feel its essence.

AFFIRMATION TO CARRY

What wants to come through me, I welcome.

EVENING RELEASE Before you go to bed

Hold whatever arose today gently. Sleep with the vision in your awareness, but without grasping. Let the Self continue the work in dream.

DAY 7 · INTEGRATION

Integration · A Day of Stillness

INSPIRATION FOR THE DAY

Today, do nothing new. Be the foundation that has been laid.

OPEN INVITATION

Take longer rest today. Walk in nature if you are able. Sit with the I AM more often, without prescribed length. Let yourself feel what these seven days have built. There is no new teaching today. No new practice. Only the deepening of what is already present. If moved, read again the opening of The Way of Conscious Creation — the central resolution. Let it land at a deeper level than before.

REFLECTION

What has changed in these seven days? Hold the question without reaching for the answer. Let it surface in its own time.

WAVE TWO

Active Creation

Days 8 through 14

The second wave begins the active practice. With the inner ground steady, you now learn assumption, feeling, and embodiment. The teaching meets the body. The body meets the day. By the end of this wave, you are no longer reading about conscious creation — you are doing it, in small and quiet ways, throughout your life.

DAY 8

Assuming the Identity

➤ From The Way of Conscious Creation · Teaching Three — Assumption Is the Law

CONTEMPLATION FOR THE DAY

I AM the one who has already received.

MORNING ANCHOR Early morning, when you wake

Sit. Three breaths into the I AM. Then: I AM ___ (the assumed identity from Day 5, now deepened by this past week). Speak it inwardly with quiet certainty. Not as wish. As recognition.

TODAY'S TEACHING

The state you are stepping into already exists within the I AM. Today you do not pretend to be what you are not. You remember what you have always been. The assumption is not theatrical. It is the recognition of a state that is already complete in the Self, now claimed as your present condition.

EMBODIED PRACTICE During the day

Three times today — early morning, midday, evening — stand in front of a mirror. Look into your own eyes. Speak the assumed identity aloud. Feel it as recognition, not declaration. Notice what shifts in the body each time.

IMAGINAL PRACTICE Once during the day

See yourself in the assumed life. Not a future life — a present truth. Inhabit it for ten minutes. Walk through ordinary actions as that one. Cook as that one. Drive as that one. Speak as that one.

AFFIRMATION TO CARRY

I AM ____.

EVENING RELEASE Before you go to bed

Sleep as that one. Whatever dreams come tonight will speak from this ground. Trust them.

DAY 9

Speaking the I AM

➤ From The Way of Conscious Creation · Teaching Three — Decree as Sacred Speech

CONTEMPLATION FOR THE DAY

Each I AM I speak today is sacred.

MORNING ANCHOR Early morning, when you wake

Sit. Three breaths into the I AM. Then speak aloud, slowly: I AM. Notice what shifts in the body when I AM is spoken aloud rather than thought. Speak it again. And again. Let the body feel the foundation being laid in the very air.

TODAY'S TEACHING

I AM is the most powerful word in creation. What follows it lays a foundation in light. To speak I AM consciously is to participate in the creative act of God. Today you practice the decree consciously, with reverence and care for what you set in motion.

EMBODIED PRACTICE During the day

At three times in the day — morning, midday, evening — speak aloud one decree in the I AM register. Stand or sit upright. Speak slowly. Feel the foundation it lays. Examples: I AM the one who creates from fullness. I AM the love I AM seeking. I AM held by the Source. Or your own. Let the words be sacred.

IMAGINAL PRACTICE Once during the day

As you decree, see the words moving outward, registering in the substance of light itself. Do not watch for the form to appear — feel the registration in the moment of speaking. The form will come in its time. Your work is the speaking.

AFFIRMATION TO CARRY

Each I AM I speak today is sacred.

EVENING RELEASE Before you go to bed

Three final decrees of the day, spoken with reverence before sleep. Then rest. Let the foundation hold.

DAY 10

Feeling It as Done

➤ From The Way of Conscious Creation · Teaching Four — Feeling Is the Gestational Power

CONTEMPLATION FOR THE DAY

Feeling is the gestational power.

MORNING ANCHOR Early morning, when you wake

Sit. Three breaths into the I AM. Then: feel the relaxation of the one who already has. Not the image of having — the felt sense. In the chest. In the breath. In the spine. Stay with the feeling for ten minutes.

TODAY'S TEACHING

Thought without feeling does not impress consciousness. Today the work is purely in feeling — no thinking, no planning. Find the feeling of the wish fulfilled and stay there. The body is the gestational womb. Without the feeling, the womb is empty. With it, manifestation becomes inevitable.

EMBODIED PRACTICE During the day

Three times today, sit for ten minutes simply feeling the assumed state. Not seeing it. Not narrating it. Feeling it. Where in the body does it live? Let it expand from there. Let the cells receive it.

IMAGINAL PRACTICE Once during the day

Less seeing today. More feeling. If an image arises, let it be — but the work is the feeling, not the image. An image without feeling is empty. A feeling, even without image, is fertile.

AFFIRMATION TO CARRY

I rest in the feeling of the wish fulfilled.

EVENING RELEASE Before you go to bed

Sleep into the feeling. Let the body believe through the night. The cells learn while the mind sleeps.

DAY 11

The Body of the Wish Fulfilled

➤ From The Way of Conscious Creation · Teachings Four and Five — Embodied Feeling

CONTEMPLATION FOR THE DAY

My body is the temple of what I AM becoming.

MORNING ANCHOR Early morning, when you wake

Sit. Three breaths into the I AM. Then place your hands on the body — chest, belly, head. Where in the body does the assumed state live most strongly? Find the location. Rest your attention there. Let it grow.

TODAY'S TEACHING

The body is the temple where consciousness becomes form. The cells learn what the mind teaches them. Today you teach your body — through breath, posture, gesture, movement — to remember the assumption. Where the body believes, the world follows.

EMBODIED PRACTICE During the day

Walk for fifteen minutes today as the assumed self. Posture aligned. Gait steady. Gesture unhurried. Pay attention: how does the assumed self stand? Sit? Walk? Breathe? Embody each, one at a time. Notice what each shifts in the body.

IMAGINAL PRACTICE Once during the day

Imagine the cells of the body receiving the new state. See it travelling from heart outward — to the lungs, to the limbs, to the skin. Every cell receives. The body now knows. Stay with this for ten minutes.

AFFIRMATION TO CARRY

My body is the temple of what I AM becoming.

EVENING RELEASE Before you go to bed

Body scan in bed. Move attention slowly through the body. Where the new state is felt, give thanks. Where it is not yet felt, breathe into that place gently. Sleep.

DAY 12

Walking as That One

➤ From The Way of Conscious Creation · Teaching Five — Embodiment Confirms

CONTEMPLATION FOR THE DAY

I walk now as the one who has received.

MORNING ANCHOR Early morning, when you wake

Sit. Three breaths into the I AM. Then ask: how would the assumed one walk through today? Set the intention. See the day briefly through their eyes. Then begin.

TODAY'S TEACHING

The world organises itself around embodied states. Today you align the small things — speech, gesture, choices — with the assumed identity. This does not require dramatic external change. It requires alignment in details: how you answer the phone, what you say yes and no to, the quality of presence you bring.

EMBODIED PRACTICE During the day

Pay attention all day to small alignments. Choose three specific behaviours — perhaps the way you greet someone, the way you eat, the way you respond when irritated — and consciously align them with the assumed self. Notice the difference.

IMAGINAL PRACTICE Once during the day

At midday, sit for ten minutes. Imagine the day so far through the eyes of the assumed one. What did they notice? What did they choose? How did they feel? Then ask: how would they want the rest of the day to unfold? Let that vision shape what comes.

AFFIRMATION TO CARRY

I walk now as the one who has received.

EVENING RELEASE Before you go to bed

Where today did inner and outer agree? Where did they diverge? No judgement. Just witness. Closing the gap is the work; today you have begun.

DAY 13

Sustaining the State

➤ From The Way of Conscious Creation · All teachings to this point

CONTEMPLATION FOR THE DAY

I AM steady. The state is held.

MORNING ANCHOR Early morning, when you wake

Sit. Three breaths into the I AM. Today's anchor is simpler — just being. No new addition. Rest in the assumption that has been built. Let the past twelve days speak through stillness.

TODAY'S TEACHING

The work today is sustaining. Not chasing more. Not adding new. Holding what has been built. Most practitioners rush forward and lose the foundation. Today you hold steady. The state slips? You return. The slipping does not undo the work; the returning is the work.

EMBODIED PRACTICE During the day

Notice when the state slips today. Notice without judgement, without disappointment. Simply return: I AM _____. Practice the returning many times throughout the day. The returning is not failure — it is the practice itself, ripening.

IMAGINAL PRACTICE Once during the day

Imagine a flame held steady in the chest. Wind blows through the day. The flame flickers. But the steady hand holding it does not waver. You are the hand. The flame is the assumption. Steady, steady.

AFFIRMATION TO CARRY

I AM steady. The state is held.

EVENING RELEASE Before you go to bed

Bless every slip of the day. Each was an invitation to return. The returning, by Day 13, has built something stronger than the steady state ever was.

DAY 14 · INTEGRATION

Integration · A Day of Living the Practice

INSPIRATION FOR THE DAY

Today, simply live as the practice has built you. No new addition. No reaching. Be.

OPEN INVITATION

Spend time today in a place that nourishes — nature, a sanctuary, a beloved space. Receive what comes without grasping. Notice the manifestation already moving. Often by Day 14, things have begun to shift in subtle ways. Today, simply notice without naming. There is no new teaching today. No new practice. Only the rhythm continuing of itself.

REFLECTION

What is already different in your life since Day 1? Don't grasp the answer. Let it surface in its own time.

WAVE THREE

Maturing the Mastery

Days 15 through 21

The third wave brings surrender, the recognition of diversions, Love as the qualifier of all creation, and the final recognition. By Day 21, the practice is no longer a practice — it is the way you now live. The art of conscious creation has become bone, breath, and lived experience.

DAY 15

Releasing the Form

➤ From The Way of Conscious Creation · Teaching Six — Surrender Is the Activation

CONTEMPLATION FOR THE DAY

This, or something greater, in service of the highest Good.

MORNING ANCHOR Early morning, when you wake

Sit. Three breaths into the I AM. Then ask: where am I gripping a specific form? What outcome have I been holding too tightly? Let the answer surface gently. Then breathe out long. With the out-breath: released.

TODAY'S TEACHING

Today you release. Not the essence — the specific form. The exact outcome. The exact timing. The exact circumstance. Hand it to the Source. Trust that the Self knows better than the personal mind how the essence should appear. The release is not loss — it is the activation of the law.

EMBODIED PRACTICE During the day

Three times today, breathe consciously: in (assumption — feel the state), out (release — let the form go). Feel the release as activation, not as loss. The hands open. The Source moves.

IMAGINAL PRACTICE Once during the day

See yourself opening your hands. The form you held — the specific outcome — released into the keeping of the Self. Watch it dissolve into light. The essence remains within you, undisturbed.

AFFIRMATION TO CARRY

This, or something greater, in service of the highest Good.

EVENING RELEASE Before you go to bed

All forms today, released. The essence is held. Sleep in the open hands. Let the Self bring what is meant to come.

DAY 16

Surrender as Activation

➤ From The Way of Conscious Creation · Teaching Six — Surrender Is the Activation

CONTEMPLATION FOR THE DAY

Not my will, but Thine. The Self moves through me.

MORNING ANCHOR Early morning, when you wake

Sit. Three breaths into the I AM. Then offer the day: not my will, but Thine. Let the day be what it is meant to be. The personal will set the direction; now the larger Will brings the form.

TODAY'S TEACHING

Surrender is not giving up. Surrender is the moment the larger Will can move freely. Today you discover the activation. Where you had been forcing, you let go — and notice the next step appear without your having to figure it out.

EMBODIED PRACTICE During the day

Whenever urgency arises today, breathe out long and slow. Whisper: surrendered. Notice the urgency dissolve. Notice the next step appear. The clock you were racing was a clock the Self does not know.

IMAGINAL PRACTICE Once during the day

Imagine sitting in the lap of the Self. The Self holds the form. You rest. The Self moves. You receive. Stay with this image for ten minutes. Let your body be held.

AFFIRMATION TO CARRY

Not my will, but Thine. The Self moves through me.

EVENING RELEASE Before you go to bed

Today's surrenders, blessed. Tomorrow's surrenders, anticipated with peace. Rest deeply tonight. The Self is at work.

DAY 17

Recognising the Diversions

➤ From The Way of Conscious Creation · Part Three — The Common Diversions

CONTEMPLATION FOR THE DAY

I AM the one who recognises and releases.

MORNING ANCHOR Early morning, when you wake

Sit. Three breaths into the I AM. Then read inwardly the seven diversions named in The Way of Conscious Creation: Wanting from Lack · Forcing and Urgency · Mental Rehearsal Without Feeling · Spiritual Bypass · Egoic Appropriation · Attachment to Specific Form · Comparison. Let each name land.

TODAY'S TEACHING

Today you do not avoid the diversions. You recognise them. Each diversion that appears today is an opportunity to remember. The one who can name a pattern is no longer fully held by it.

EMBODIED PRACTICE During the day

Throughout the day, when one of the seven appears in you, name it silently. There is wanting from lack. There is forcing. There is comparison. Then apply the remedy from The Way of Conscious Creation. Don't judge. Just recognise and return.

IMAGINAL PRACTICE Once during the day

Sit with whichever diversion has been most active for you in this practice. Without judgement, see how it has held you. Then see yourself releasing it — gently, as one releases a bird that came to be held briefly. The bird flies; you remain.

AFFIRMATION TO CARRY

I AM the one who recognises and releases.

EVENING RELEASE Before you go to bed

Bless every diversion that appeared today. Each was a teacher. Each, named, has lost some of its power.

DAY 18

Love as the Law of Return

➤ From The Way of Conscious Creation · Teaching Seven — Love Is the Law of Return

CONTEMPLATION FOR THE DAY

The motive is the manifestation.

MORNING ANCHOR Early morning, when you wake

Sit. Three breaths into the I AM. Then ask: in what spirit do I create? Let the answer reveal itself. If the answer is fear, lack, or comparison — return to I AM and ask again until the answer is Love.

TODAY'S TEACHING

What is created from Love endures. What is created from fear, lack, or comparison consumes itself eventually. Today every act of creation is qualified by Love. Without Love, do nothing — wait until Love is present, then act.

EMBODIED PRACTICE During the day

Before any significant action today, take three breaths. Ask: is this in Love? If yes, proceed. If not, wait. This will slow your day. That is good. The Self is not in a hurry.

IMAGINAL PRACTICE Once during the day

See your manifestation as a gift you are giving — first to yourself, then to all who will be touched by it. The gift is wrapped in Love. The Love is the seal that ensures the gift will endure.

AFFIRMATION TO CARRY

I create from Love. I create for the Whole.

EVENING RELEASE Before you go to bed

Where Love qualified today's creation, give thanks. Where it did not, return tomorrow with new awareness.
Sleep in the Love that is the ground of all.

DAY 19

Giving from Fullness

➤ From The Way of Conscious Creation · Teaching Seven — The Rhythm of Balanced Interchange

CONTEMPLATION FOR THE DAY

I give as freely as I receive. The flow is sacred.

MORNING ANCHOR Early morning, when you wake

Sit. Three breaths into the I AM. Then feel: I AM full. There is more than enough. From fullness, I now give.

TODAY'S TEACHING

To activate the rhythm of return, give. Today you give without record. Material if you can — money, gift, possession. Energetic if not — attention, listening, time. Always loving — the blessing of presence given freely. The flow ceases when giving ceases.

EMBODIED PRACTICE During the day

Give three times today. To three different people or contexts. Without record. Without expectation. Notice what comes back — sometimes immediately, sometimes later, sometimes not in form but in feeling. Notice the rhythm itself, more than what comes.

IMAGINAL PRACTICE Once during the day

Imagine yourself as a fountain. The Source gives to you continuously. You give onward continuously. The water moves through you, never lost, never accumulated, always flowing. The flow is the abundance.

AFFIRMATION TO CARRY

I give as freely as I receive. The flow is sacred.

EVENING RELEASE Before you go to bed

Bless what was given today. Bless what was received. The rhythm is restored. Sleep in the flow.

DAY 20

The Final Recognition

➤ From The Way of Conscious Creation · Part Four — The Final Recognition

CONTEMPLATION FOR THE DAY

There was never anything to manifest. I AM what I sought.

MORNING ANCHOR Early morning, when you wake

Sit. Three breaths into the I AM. Today the I AM is not a beginning, not an instrument, not a method. Today the I AM is recognised as the answer to every question that was ever asked. Rest as that answer.

TODAY'S TEACHING

The deepest manifestation is the recognition that there was never anything to manifest. The Self gives gifts to Itself, in forms It chooses, for the joy of the giving. You are the Self. You always were. The forms that come are not the point — you are.

EMBODIED PRACTICE During the day

Today, walk as one who has completed the practice. Not seeking. Not striving. Living. Notice everything as a gift the Self gives Itself. The breakfast. The conversation. The light. Each is a gift. Receive each.

IMAGINAL PRACTICE Once during the day

See the entire twenty days. Each day a stone laid. Today the road is complete. Walk it with gratitude. See where you started. See where you stand now. The same I AM is in both. But the recognition has deepened beyond all measure.

AFFIRMATION TO CARRY

There was never anything to manifest. I AM what I sought.

EVENING RELEASE Before you go to bed

Tomorrow is the last day of structured practice. Hold the gratitude already. Sleep in completion.

DAY 21 · INTEGRATION

Living as Conscious Creator · The Way of the Master

INSPIRATION FOR THE DAY

*Today is not the end of the practice.
Today is the recognition that the practice
has become you.*

OPEN INVITATION

Live this day with full attention but no specific practice. Let everything you have learned simply be. The Way of Conscious Creation is not now something you do — it is something you are. If moved, read the closing decree from The Way of Conscious Creation aloud. Let it carry you forward into all the days that follow.

REFLECTION

How will I continue beyond today? Hold the question and let your life answer it.

BEYOND DAY 21

The Practice Continues

The practice does not end when the twenty-one days end. The structure ends. The walking continues — now in your own rhythm, on your own ground, in the way of your own life.

You have been a practitioner for twenty-one days. From this day forward, you are a conscious creator — not because the practice has given you something you did not have, but because the practice has revealed something you always were.

HOW TO CONTINUE

The Living Rhythm

Some practitioners continue with a single daily ritual — a morning anchor, a contemplation held through the day, an evening release. This is enough. The discipline of returning daily to the I AM is the entire practice in seed form.

Others return to specific days when the moment calls for them. Day 1 when the ground feels lost. Day 6 when vision is needed. Day 10 when feeling has gone flat. Day 15 when the hands are gripping too tightly. Day 18 when Love must be remembered. Use the booklet this way — as a companion you return to, not as a course you complete and put away.

Still others find that after Day 21, the practice has become so integrated that no formal structure is needed. The morning anchor happens of itself in the first conscious breath of the day. The decree speaks itself when the moment requires it. The evening release rises naturally before sleep. This is the destination — and you may arrive there sooner than you expect.

WHEN YOU FORGET

Returning Without Shame

You will forget. Days will come when you do not anchor in the morning, do not remember in the day, do not release at night. This is not failure. This is human life. When you remember that you have forgotten — that very moment of remembering is the practice. Smile. Take three breaths. Return.

The practice is not a streak to be maintained. It is a relationship to be tended. Relationships have closeness and distance, presence and absence. What matters is the returning.

CARRY THIS FORWARD

The Closing Decree

From The Way of Conscious Creation, the closing decree of the entire teaching. Speak it now, and from time to time as the days unfold:

I AM

*I AM the one in whom all good already lives.
What I assume becomes my truth.
What I feel becomes my form.
What I bless becomes my way.
I create from fullness, never from lack.
I release the form; I keep the essence.
I serve the Whole, and the Whole serves me.
So it is. So I AM.*

*You have walked the twenty-one days.
The Way of Conscious Creation is no longer something you read.
It is something you are.
The world that comes to meet you now is the world your I AM has shaped.
Receive it gracefully.
Bless it.
Continue.*

*You are home.
You always were.
From here, anything may come — and everything that comes is good.*

— in service of the one Light —

ABOUT

Constantin Cranz

Constantin Cranz works at the level of identity and consciousness. For more than thirty years he has practiced and taught the principles of Ascension, drawing on a synthesis of teachings from the I AM Discourses, A Course in Miracles, the Way of Mastery, Neville Goddard's Law of Assumption, Walter Russell's cosmology of the One, Advaita Vedanta, Tibetan Bon and Dzogchen, Hridaya Yoga, and the broader contemplative lineages.

His coaching is grounded in universal principles, not techniques. It rests on three recognitions: that identity precedes behaviour, that the inner creates the outer, and that imagination is the primary creative tool of the Self. The work is causal — not the management of circumstance, but the awakening of the one in whom all good already lives.

He works with those who are ready to step out of seeking and into sovereign creation — individuals who sense that their lives are the expression of consciousness, and who wish to live deliberately, in alignment with God, life, and the universe. Sessions are practical, principle-rooted, and elevated in tone. Not motivational, but identity-level. The aim is not to add to the personality but to remember the Self that was never lost.

Constantin is based in Medellín, Colombia, and works internationally with clients across many cultures and contexts.

FOR INDIVIDUAL COACHING

Constantin Cranz

constantincranz@gmail.com

www.consciouscreation.art

The Practice · Twenty-One Days of Embodiment
A teaching by Constantin Cranz · ❖